Organisation, Functions and Duties
{Section 4 (1) (b) (i) }

Right to Information Act

The name of the organization is Irrigation & C.A.D. (IW&PW) Department functioning as Secretariat, A.P., Hyderabad. The functions and duties of the Departments are mentioned as hereunder.

INTRODUCTION OF IRRIGATION & COMMAND AREA DEVELOPMENT DEPARTMENT

ANDHRA Pradesh is the fourth largest State in India with a population of 72.7 million and a geographical area of 27.44 million hectare.

Andhra Pradesh stands at a high pedestal in the irrigated map of India with its rich water resources with major rivers like Godavary, Krishna, Pennar and many more medium and minor rivers.

Water is a prime natural resource, a basic human need and a precious asset. Its importance is very high particularly for the agriculture. Most of the population lives in villages and the agriculture is the main resource for them. If there is water in the village, farmers in the village will be extremely happy and their livelihood will also be improved

There is a wide variation of the rainfall between the different districts of the State. The six North Coastal Districts and there north Telangana Districts receive more than 1,000 mm per annum, while a scanty rainfall below 700 mm is registered in Kurnool, Ananthapur and Kadapa Districts. The lowest is recorded in Ananthapur district (568 mm), while Vizianagaram District has the highest rainfall (1,159 mm) on an average.

Agriculture in Andhra Pradesh is largely dependent on rainfall. Of the State's geographical area, 47% is under cultivation and the net sown area is about 10.43 mha. Of which 4.88 mha is irrigated. Majority of the population is dependent on agriculture for household level livelihoods. About 80.0 lakh farmers are covered under irrigated agriculture.

The State's share of dependable flows from the river system is estimated at 2746 tmc. This breaks up into 1480 tmc from the Godavari River system, 811 tmc from the Krishna, 98 tmc from the Pennar and the rest from the other small rivers.

Out of the 1480 tmc available in Godavari system about 720 tmc is under utilization at present. The entire dependable yield of river Krishna is almost fully harnessed through the construction of several irrigation projects. Irrigation projects are the main resources for utilizing the water for agriculture and to protect from drought without which the water will go waste into the sea. Keeping in view of the large quantity of water availability in the Godavari system and also in some other rivers, Government now consider that construction of irrigation projects is their top most priority.

Thus, Andhra Pradesh irrigation scenario presents a huge spectrum of information on its irrigation development and other related activities from which the people can get benefited.
